

William Livingston House

Morris and North Avenues, Union

William Livingston built Liberty Hall in 1772–1773 and made it his home until his death in 1790. Livingston was a major figure during the Revolutionary period. He served as governor of New Jersey from 1776 to 1790 and was a signer of the Constitution. His fine frame house has been greatly enlarged since his time but is still intact beneath and behind its accretions. In 1997 the house was donated to the Liberty Hall Foundation. It is open to the public as a house museum.
